

EFFECTIVE CLEANING TO ELIMINATE THE SCENT OF URINE AND FAECES

House soiling can occur for many reasons although in some cases it can continue due to the cat/ dog detecting the scent where it has previously marked or defecated. Some products available from the veterinary practice can be very effective and rather than masking the smell do eliminate it. However the following is a very useful method of removing the odour from the site:

1. Make up three spray bottles and label A, B & C.
2. In bottle A mix a solution of one part biological clothing washing powder/ liquid with 10 parts of water (10% solution).
3. In bottle B fill with plain water.
4. In bottle C fill with surgical spirit (clear not methylated spirit).

Each soiled location should be cleaned as follows:

- 🐾 Remove the urine/faeces with clean paper towels. Blot the excess urine.
- 🐾 Spray the area with bottle A.
- 🐾 Wipe clean with paper towels.
- 🐾 Spray the area with bottle B.
- 🐾 Wipe clean and dry by blotting excess as before.
- 🐾 Finally spray with bottle C and allow to dry fully before allowing the cat access to the area.

(Test this cleaning method on a small inconspicuous area of fabric/carpet to avoid staining and damage)

Other recommendations:

Avoid re-using a cloth as this will spread the odour – always use disposable towels.

Curtains and other furniture covers can be cleaned as above and then washed according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Surgical spirit will damage polished surfaces and furniture so this method is not suitable for these items.

For specific help with a behaviour problem please contact me:

CAROLINE CLARK

Registered Veterinary Nurse, Cert. Ed. ABTC Registered Clinical Animal Behaviour Counsellor, APBC FULL Member Post Graduate Diploma in (AS) Companion Animal Behaviour Counselling.

Email: carolineclark@peteducationandtraining.co.uk

Website: <https://www.peteducationandtraining.co.uk>

